

HuNia V. Bradley Biography

HuNia V. Bradley, community activist, educator and self-taught chef has been preparing vegetarian meals for well over 20 years. Driven by the desire for her family to be healthy and not fall prey to food related dis-eases such as hypertension, diabetes and obesity, HuNia immersed herself in learning about proper nutrition and came to the realization that “delicious and wholesome food is the best medicine”. Understanding that flavor is critical to any good meal, HuNia has mastered the art of creating “delicious, yet nutritious” meals that offer a “soulful” twist to your international palate. Inspired by the great response from her community, HuNia’s Divine Soul Kitchen was created to meet their needs. Presently, we offer international vegetarian catering and personal chef services. Our client list includes ASA Academy, a private school in Oakland, where we provide succulent cuisine to the student body, Baker YMCA, the American Heart Association, and the Bay Area Black United Fund (BABUF), to name a few. We also provide classes and workshops to various community groups, organizations and churches throughout the region.
